We would like to acknowledge the invaluable assistance of three key individuals in running the Global Summit. Leslie Sullivan, Global Summit Event Coordinator, provided tireless hours preparing, organizing, and promoting the Global Summit project. Carole Fisher, Executive Director of the Continuing Medical Education Office at the University of Washington, gave outstanding logistical coordination for the meeting in Seattle. Susan London, serving as both our medical writer and publication editor, facilitated with finesse and panache the complex consolidation of information necessary to produce this publication. The entire Global Summit group is indebted to this outstanding team. We also thank the Global Summit corporate partners for their generous unrestricted educational grants, without which the Global Summit could not have happened: the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation; Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc.; AstraZeneca; and Novartis Oncology. We acknowledge and appreciate the Breast Journal, Blackwell Publishing, and the journal's editor Dr. Shahla Masood for collaborating on the publication of the Global Summit consensus statement, for supporting our mission and goals and for helping us disseminate this information to the broader world community.

Finally, we thank Kathleen Sellick, Chief Executive Officer of the University of Washington Medical Center, who backed the Global Summit from inception to completion, because it was "just the right thing to do."
